Aquatic

Frosh—Where's the aquarium? I want to see the university seal.

—The Michigan Technic.

Come Seven!

The Preacher—I had a very enjoyable trip to the Adirondacks. The first day I shot two bucks. Sport (absently)—Win anything, parson?

Less Sleep Found to Speed Up Brain

Therefore we suggest all quizzes be held the day after the Junior Prom.

—Evening Ledger.

Guide—Quick. There's a full-grown leopard. Shoot him on the spot.

Lord Dumbleigh—Which spot? I say, be specific, my man.

Hits Us!

"I understand that your son got his B. A. and his M. A."

"Yes, but it is still his P. A. that supports him."

"What did you name the new baby?"

"We call her 'Ivy' 'cause she climbs all over the house."—West Point Pointer.

He Meant Extinguished

"I want to be procrastinated at the next corner," said Uncle Rastus to the street car conductor.

"You want to be—what?"

"Look in de dictionary, sah. 'Procrastinate, to put off.' Dat's what I mean."

—The Kansas Engineer.

Denatured?

A chemist says that the first alcohol distilled was Arabian, which may explain those nights.

—Detroit News.

Hi Lawyers, Here's One on You!

She—Do you think there are divorces in heaven?

He—I don't think so. You can't get a divorce without a lawyer, can you?

A Question of Supporters

I rose with great alacrity

To offer her my seat.

'Twas a question whether she or I
Should stand upon my feet.

Poor Frosh

"Billy" Evans—Now, class, we have finished oxygen and tomorrow we will take arsenic.

A Professor?

"Are you the man who cut my hair the last time?"

"I couldn't be, sir; I've only been here a year."

Former Hat Salesman (now grocery clerk)—A large head of cabbage, ma'am; say about six and seven-eighths?

Our Students At The Front

Stude—Captain, I have neither pencil nor paper.

Cap.—What would you think of a soldier who went to battle without ammunition?

Stude—I would think he was an officer, sir.

Maybe 'Twas Columbus

Mr. Higgy had just been rescued from his burning home. Firemen had found him absorbed in the workings of a new super-synchro-heterodyne radio set.

"I smelled the smoke," he admitted, "but I thought I had KDKA."

Two stuttering blacksmiths had finished heating a piece of pig-iron, and one placed it on the anvil with a pair of tongs.

"H-h-h-h-hit it," he stuttered to his helper.

"Wh-wh-wh-where?" asked the other.

"Aw, h-h-h-h-hell, we'll h-have to h-h-heat it again now."—Oklahoma Whirlwind.

Rastus—Whyfo' you call your gal 'Valspar,' Sambo?

Sambo—'Cause all the boilin' water in the world ain't gonna turn her white.

"Uncle Robert, when does your football team play?"

"Football team! What do you mean, my boy?"

"Why pa said that when you kicked off we could afford an automobile."—Boston Transcript.

Life's Expensive Nowadays

A Philadelphian who swallowed a collar button has had three operations, all of which failed to locate it. If this sort of thing keeps up, he will undoubtedly have to buy a new one.—Judge.

START A TECHNICAL LIBRARY NOW

If you have not already done so, start a permanent technical library now, and add to it as rapidly as you can. You will find all the books on your profession that you acquire now will be valuable to you when you get on the job. An important source of material for your library is the booklets published by manufacturers of the materials you will later use in your work.

The Hercules Powder Company publishes educational booklets, some or all of which should be included in every engineering student's library. Look through this list, check the ones you wish, and they will be sent to you without charge.

These treatises were written by explosives engineers who combine theoretical knowledge with practical experience. They are authoritative, comprehensive, and up-to-date. And they are free.
